```java
public class J2A8 {

        //*******************************************************
        // Assignment:      J2A8
        //
        // Description: Sales receipt program.
        //
        // Author: Darshil Patel
        //
        // Date Start: Sept 27, 2016
        // Date Completed: (Enter date completed)
        //
        // Completion time: 15 mins
        //
        // Honor Code: I pledge that this program represents my own //    program code. I received help from (enter the names of //    others that helped with the assignment; write no one if //    you received no help) in designing and debugging my program.
        //*******************************************************

        /*

        */

        public static void main (String[] args)  // end of line comment
        {
                String customerName = "Darshil Patel"; //set's the value of the Username
                String productName = "MacBook Pro 13"; // Set's the value for the product name
                double productPrice = 1500.00; //assigns the product Price final double taxRate = 0.13; // assigns a constant tax rate double addedTax; //initializes variable which is later used double finalPrice; //initializes variable which is later used addedTax = productPrice * taxRate; //calculates the tax finalPrice = addedTax + productPrice; //final price incl taxes

                System.out.println(customerName);
                System.out.println( productName);
                System.out.println("");
                System.out.println("Price: $" + productPrice) ;
                System.out.println("Tax: $" + addedTax);
                System.out.println("-------");
                System.out.println("Total: $" + finalPrice);

        } // end main method
    } // end class
```